Text can be a simple component of a video, but it can also create maximum impact. Whenever you add text to the video, the goal is to convey information and without distracting from the narrative. Fortunately, apps like iMovie make adding text to video a breeze. iMovie has many useful tools that will take your video production to the next level without taking a ton of time to learn how to use it. Discover our plans here! Here are some examples of different text types you can add to a video in iMovie. Add text for titles Every story needs a right title? You can choose from several styles to add an impact title to your video. Use Text for Lower Third Party Calls Third text is commonly used to identify a subject such as the person speaking to the camera or the location. Use Captions (Text during the movie) Help guide your story by using the text to make a point or introduce the next idea. Add Credits Give props to everyone who helped make your video! What makes adding text to iMovie even more convenient are the transitions and ready-made effects that come with each title option. You will get a professional and refined look with a few keystrokes. We'll show you step by step how to add text to iMovie. The iMovie user interface is very easy to navigate, but we have a beginner's guide on iMovie for those unfamiliar with the program. The process for adding text is the same regardless of the style you choose. To get started, we'll use a motorcycle footage from our Creator to Creator collection. Step 1. Start iMovie From the start screen select Create New and an empty workspace will appear. Go ahead with a click on the Import Media arrow. You will be directed to a menu where you can navigate between the desired clips. Once you have selected the clips, click Import Selected in the bottom right corner. You will then be sent back to your Workspace with the video ready to use. Directly access your inbox for the best video tips, design hacks and deals. Step 3. Drag the video into the timeline Click and drag the video clip into the timeline, the clip will automatically expand so it's easy to see what you're working with. The expanded timeline allows you to quickly scroll through the movie to choose the perfect place where the title will appear. Go to Titles at the top of the workspace (above where the imported movie is located) and you'll see a menu of text options and styles to choose from. You can preview the appearance of each title (including animations and effects) by moving your mouse over a title. Once you find a default text you like, double-click it and the title will appear in the timeline. You can text anywhere in the video, but not necessarily at the beginning or end. Play with matching the title with the right timing in the movie. Once you have figured out the positioning, go to the top right corner of your workspace to see text controls menu is where you can add text to the clip, as well as change the font style, size, color and alignment. We went ahead and created this title for our clip: See what it looks like in action. The movie makes it incredibly easy to add text to video, not to mention, the design and effects patterns are pretty spot-on.
