Order by 2 columns in sql

Warning: Can only detect less than 5000 charactersIt is insects. I understood that way. Of course two people with the same name is a possibility. But every new bug reported would have a new and unique ID. It's The order of the columns listed in the Order By clause. You try to exchanging the position of the columns listed every time you need to go and see the first would be to have the condition condition This should not be confused with the appearance order of the columns in the Select column Column1, Column2, Column3, column4. Statement that should be our desired order of appearance of the columns in the result. You can use order for two or more columns. The first column listed in the order is for the primary sort key. Similarly, the last column is listed the key to more minor sort within the sequence. The secondary keys are referred to as ordered within the primary sort key. Example: SEL Last_Name, Class_Code, Gray_PT from TBL_EPR Desc Order of 2, 1; Output: last_nameclass_codegrade_ptdelaney3.35Philip3smithso2wilsonso3.8bondjr3.95mcrobertsjr1.9hansonfrettsjr1.9hansonfr2.88Larkinsfr0thomasfr.Hive, Class_Code is ordered DESC First, so the name is sorted in ascending Class_Code. Order by, ASC, DESC is necessary to view the records from an ordered data table with two columns. Example: our database has a table called employees with the following columns: id, first_name, last_name and salary. IDFIRST_NAMELAST_NAME$LARY 1Lisaulman3000 2Adamuller2400 3thomasgreen2400 4MichaelMuller3000 5MyRyGreen2400 View detailed information for each employee, but also sorts the records by salary in descending order by last name first and then in ascending order. Solution: Select ID, First_Name, Last_Name, wage order for the employee's salary desc, last_name; This query returns records sorted based on two pillars: salary and last_name.
