Sorry to interruptCSS Error Works great for me, but my setup is simple: no streaming; just a TV screen, a cheap Vice soundbar, and a Motorola DCX-3500 box. He received the dark-silver/grey pattern with the red button "OK/Select." If this does not work your cable box, your cable box may be of the new generation "X1", or you may need to reprogram the "Cable" button on the device on the remote control to a code that matches the hardware. Yes, this remote DID comes with the "Cable" button locked. I had to unlock the "Cable" button on the device before reprogramming: To unlock Press and release the CABLE button once, the CABLE button should flash once. Press and hold the SETUP button until the CABLE button flashes twice. Let me go. Enter the digits 9-8-2 If the CABLE button flashes 4 times, you have successfully unlocked the CABLE button. If the CABLE button flashes twice, you have not successfully unlocked it. Maybe it was already unlocked. Unfortunately, the instructions that came with my remote control do not have a list of cable TV codes. I had to look for a User Guide for an older version of the remote control on the Internet. All the instructions in the old user guides worked for me, however, including how to lock the VOLUME remote control to my AUX device (and not my TV, which is the default behavior of the remote control). (Free bonus... To block the VOLUME and MUTE controls of the remote control on the existing AUX device.... Hold down the SETUP button until Red Light flashes 2x. Release the SETUP key. Enter 9-8-3 (TYPO!! Enter 9-9-3, not 9-8-3) Red light flashes 2x. Press and release the AUX button. AUX Red Light flashes 2x. (These simple instructions were NOT ALSO in the current User Guide, which you sent with the remote control...) In addition, this remote control easily and successfully accepted the device code for my cheap vice soundbar (32 454), which has always been a nightmare to work with most universal remote. Everything worked out just fine. I bought another one. Remember that all device codes you want to use with this template must be 5 digits. Older device codes (such as "476" for a Motorola cable box) must be emptied of a 5-digit code ("00 476"). The same applies to the old EFC key codes to digits like "30-second leap forward" ("173" -> "00 173") Universal Remote Codes Comcast: You can program the Xfinity remote control to appear together with the TV and audio/video (AV) receiver, some sort of soundbar and other pieces of audio equipment.
